Installation

Please Note: These instructions require that users open their notebook computer for modification, and assume a general knowledge of computer installation procedures. If you are unfamiliar with the terms used, or procedures described, please contact a computer professional for assistance.

Warning! Be sure that you are properly grounded before opening your computer case or touching any of the contents of the computer. StarTech.com recommends that you wear an anti-static strap when installing any computer component. If an anti-static strap is unavailable, discharge yourself of any static electricity build-up by touching a large grounded metal surface (such as the computer case) for several seconds.

1. Open the computer, exposing the SATA data and power connections. Typically, these connectors will already be attached to the factory installed hard drive.
2. Remove the (installed) hard drive from the computer, by disconnecting the power and data connections mentioned in step #1.
3. Connect the power and data connectors provided by the notebook computer to the SATA power and data connectors on SAT2CF, and fasten the adapter to the notebook. Once the notebook case has been closed, power on the computer. The inserted Compact Flash card will be recognized as a bootable hard drive.
